HIGHGROUND INDUSTRIAL TO PARTICIPATE IN DEMOLITION AND RECONSTRUCTION OF SCHOTT GLASS PLANT

Mahwah, NJ: June 9, 2015 - HIGHGROUND INDUSTRIAL announced today they have been selected by SCHOTT North America, Inc. to facilitate in the demolition and recovery at the Duryea, Pennsylvania facility.

The plant was destroyed following a fire March 3, 2015. Over 200 firemen and 35 fire departments responded to a four alarm fire at SCHOTT's plant and warehouse. They fought the blaze for over 11 hours in dangerous weather conditions. The warehouse and part of the production facility was severely damaged. Fire investigators are currently sifting through the buildings.

SCHOTT's Duryea facility produces industrial and scientific glass products in North America as well as supply the U.S. Department of Defense and Homeland Security. SCHOTT's North America Research and Development Center is also located on the Duryea property.

HIGHGROUND INDUSTRIAL has been selected to complete both the recovery phase as well as selective and controlled demolition of the burned areas. David Hoehmann, President of HIGHGROUND INDUSTRIAL, stated, "We are pleased to be a part of the clean-up operation for SCHOTT. My company is doing everything possible to ensure the selective and controlled demolition work is completed on time to allow for reconstruction to begin. We understand how important it is for the facility to get back to being fully functional and for people to get back to work. Our team is on site, working with SCHOTT personnel, completing the demolition phase."
